dition at north connection, 36: condition at south connection, 36: distributing reservoir, temperature, 55: condition at influent gate to a matter in connection with this circus as well as others of a similar character, which works somewhat of a hardship on our citizens who visit these shows. I refer to the practice of the circus companies opening their ticket offices for the sale of ing their ticket offices for the sale of tickets in many instances less than an hours before the performance commence, thereby causing a great jam of the people in their desire to procure tickets for the exercises. Many persons in order to avoid the crowd around the ticket office buy their tickets from brokers on the outside at an advanced rate. This is an imposition upon our citizens and should not be tolerated.

"That there is collusion between the circus people and these brokers is evident from the delay in opening the ticket office and the short time it is kept open. This could all be avoided if the honorable Commissioners, before granting a liceuse, would adopt a rule requiring the circus company to keep their ticket office open during the entire day and evening, say fro o'clock a. m. to 9 o'clock p. m., and positively prohibit the sale of tickets by any person in or around the circus grounds." The Commissioners will adopt the suggestion it is thought.

"As Forepaugh's circus is about to visit our city I would respectfully invite your attention to a matter in connection with this circus as the connection of the Court," by Mr. Brander Matthews, and "Square Inn," by Mr. Frank Stockton, and the players were Agnes Booth, in tonnage the connection with this circus as the connection of the court, and the players were Agnes Booth, in tonnage the connection with this circus as the connection with this circus as the connection of the court, and the players were the connection of the court, and the players were Agnes Booth, in the connection with this circus as the connection of the court, and the connection of the connection with the connection of the court, and the connection of the court, and the connection with the connection with the connection of the court, and the connection of the court, and the connection of the court, and the connection with the connection of the court, and the connection of the court, and the connection ington. These animadversions have gone be-Agnes Parks, Netta Guion, Sarah McVicer, May Tyrrell, Grace Kimbail, Eugene Ormonde, Paul Arthur, Alexander Fisher and F. F. Mackay, certainly not unknown and inefficient people. On the contrary most excellent peo-ple who played their parts beautifully, and while the plays may not have been as strong in action or as dramatic in situation as other plays the result was eminently satisfactory. A very bright and witty dialogue is "The Decision of the Court," done gracefully and naturally by Mr. Ormonde and Miss Booth, and a humorous and interesting production is "Squirrel Inn," in which Sarah McVicar as Mrs. Petter does the landlord's wife in a manner that simply defies everything except praise. Not a character in the cast of eight people is done weakly, and while there is not great opportunity for great acting, there is a magnificent opportunity not to act, which few stage people are able to meet as it should be net. The plays are possibly rather too talky. Squirrel Inn' concludes awkwardly, which could be remedied in three strokes of a blue pencil, but taken by and large the performance last night was decidedly better than many which come from New York with all the praise of all the New York and Boston critics. The audience was a good one and brilliant in its character, some of the best known people being present. In the boxes were Secretary and Mrs. Lamont and other recognized leaders in social and official life. The satisfaction of the auditors was demonstrated by the fact that the curtain NATIONAL.-Herrmann was at the National last night and a lot of people were there with him and they stayed by him till the last trick ras done and the last witchery of the wizard had wiggled. Herrmann is like the spring time, he is just as fresh and lovely this year as he was last and as he was the year before and will be next year. He is the gracefullest wizard before the public and he is assisted in his wizardry by a charming little woman, Mme, Herrmanu. The old joke is always with a negro minstrel; he wouldn't be a wizard without them, just as the negro minstrel would not be a negro minstrel if all his jokes were new. The serving of cafe au lait made on the stage from beaus and bran and cold water was new, as was also the strange disappearance of the little Chinaman from a basket house hung far above the stage, and so was the trick of "The Caliph of Bagdad," in which Mme. Herrmann, whose hands are held by persons from the audience, disappears mys-teriously to reappear in the middle of the house, as the wizard smiles that guileless Mephistophelian smile of his, when all is over. He is gracious and graceful wizard, is Herrmann, and he will be that till the wizard of wizards spirits him away some day and loses the magic wand that can bring him back again. coming with all its previously earned favor and a cordial reception at the Academy of Music last night. The powerful vet graceful story told by Belasco and DeMille received a most taken by Authur Elliott in a manner which won him warm expressions of approval. METZEROTT MUSIC HALL.—The Yale Giee and Banjo Club concert went with the sparkle The Commissioners have leased to George F. and vim that constitutes the chief charm of an entertainment by college men. The audience was carried promptly into the spirit of merriment which surrounds the lighter work and manifested genuine appreciation of the selecinent people were present, among them being Mrs. Bissell and Representative and Mrs. Dal-zell. KERNAN'S LYCEUM THEATER.-The attraction at Kernan's this week is Bob Fitzsimmons, the famous prize fighter, and a vaudeville company are ciever, but last night it could be seen that the audience was impatient for the appearance of the conquerer of Jim Hall and the winner of the largest purse ever offered for a prize fight. He appeared at the end of the variety performance and gave an exhibition of how he trains missioners yesterday: "Man's inhumanity to for a contest. A large-size punching bag was hung and for ten minutes he punched the leather with unerring aim. It was a remarkable exhibition and demonstrated how the eye can be trained. At the end of his exhibition he participated in a three-round giove contest with Frank Bosworth. It was lively enough for any stripped. He is above the average height, with the legs of a middle weight and the body of a heavy weight. His chest is full and deep and difficult to explain just what Mr. Grossmith's recitals, the first of which will take place at Metzerott's Music Hall one week from tonight, are like. They are entirely original. He writes his own lines and songs, composes his own music, or adapts other people's, and generally steps aside from the beaten track of the platform in every particular. To have heard Ge Grossmith is to have enjoyed a veritable surprise, for no one yet has succeeded in making so much out of so little as this inimitable entertainer. In his "Society Up to Date" he manages to catch up the eccentricities, extravagan-cies and oddities of the people in the best circles and display them in such a whimsical fashion that not to laugh at them is an impossibility. After showing up the fads and follies of the upper circles Mr. Grossmith will devote himself to a description of play acting in which he will give some original ideas as to the differences between acting on and off the stage. This sketch he will end with some ideas in regard to Italian opera, and will illustrate the unlimited possibilities of the recitative. In addition to these two sketches Mr. Grossmith will tell how ladies go shopping and point out the peculiarities which "some other lady" shows in this occupation. The sale of seats will commence at Metzerott's music store on Thursday morning.

HARRIS' BIJOU THEATER.-Miss Jean Voorbees' appearance at Harris' Bijou Theater resulted in a very cordial reception both for the comely little actress and her play, "Only a Farmer's Daughter." It is a piece that has earned a firm place in the admiration of the American people. It blends in a most effective way a great diversity of dramatic elements—comedy, pathos and emotional drama, with a good sprinkling of melodrama. Its situations are strong and the characters, with scarcely an exception, well taken. The ladies of the comare strong and the characters, with scarcely an exception, well taken. The ladies of the company are exceptionally good looking. The play is well costumed. Miss Voorhees' dresses and diamonds were objects of much attention from the ladies in the audience. The fact that she is a niece of Senator Voorhees may have done a share toward creating an interest in the young woman, but she is quite competent to stand on her merits as an actress, without allusion by say of advertisement to her family or social way of advertisement to her family or social

DEATH OF MRS. FRANCIS H. BALL. Mrs. Francis H. Ball, a lady prominent in the section in which she resided, died Saturday near Hermon's Chapel, about six miles west of town, on the line of the Conduit road. The position of surveyor for Washington city. The finneral will take place today. Glenwood is to be the place of interment.

A JOKE ON THE MARKET MASTER. A few weeks ago Mr. Williams, the market master, issued a notice which stated that on | and after a certain date no baby carriages would be allowed within the house of vegetables and meats, and on Saturday some of the stall owners conceived the idea of fixing up a joke on the old gentleman in consequence; so borrowing a carriage, in his absence, they placed it conspicuously in one of the market paths, first rigging up a dummy that looked among ruffles and tucks like many a baby that has been in the market. When Mr. Williams came in he fussed and fumed for a few minutes and then kept a stendy lookout for the mother of the quiet intruder.

the mother of the quiet intruder.

After waiting for two hours and a half and the closing hour arriving the market master the closing hour arriving the market master to stall patience and determined to turn the carriage, baby and all, over to the police.

So allowing himself to be used as the motive to the police.

So allowing himself to be used as the motive power the carriage went slowly out of the big door. But of course no policemen were in sight and for several squares the market master was halloed at and guyed.

Finally an officer was found, and with an irritable remark the thing was turned over to him. Then Mr. Williams thought he would like to take a good peep at the apparent infant, and, pulling aside the covering. &c., bent down.

One look was enough to make him disgusted with himself, as the infant on close examination proved to be the most unnatural thing imaginable. Today he has found no rest. The interment of Mrs. Sarah C. Welsh, which ook place this afternoon, was private.

FIRE TO CLEAR LAND. For some days the usual brush fires, kindled to clear the fields for spring planting, have impurity. rges. Of this number been burning in this neighborhood, from Washetown and 45 for inter-fleet bore 20,689 tons of some cases going beyond bounds, but injuring nothing of value. This custom of spring fires in the underbrush is older than the first settlement of the Potomac side by white men. The Mecostian Indian never did hard work and when he wanted to plant a tobacco patch he selected an opening in the forest, but if no opening was convenient, forest, but if no opening was convenient, he fired the forest in places where the trees were smallest and burned a clear place, where tobacco could be planted, and made the Indian PURIFY THE BLOOD and, thus, go to the root women make his little crop of the comforting weed. These fires were so numerous in early days that to them was attributed the thirsty appearance of some sections of the countr the spring. The white planters often followed the Indian fashion, but after wood became of value forest fires ceased and the burnings were hall and was a very successful affair. Mr. H. The court of Alexandria county, held in the W. Schlosser was chairman of the floor commitcity of Alexandria, Judge D. M. Chichester presiding, was occupied Monday with the motion for the establishment of a new public road from the Aqueduct bridge to the Military road. John Critchen and R. H. Phillips appeared in behalf of the applicants, and Morgan Alexandria, Va., represented the only objecting land owners, A. S. Worthington and C. G. Pfluger, both non-residents. Abundant testimony was produced showing the advantages and conveniences of the proposed road. The Ivanwold property of about 150 acres, largely owned by Washingtonians and overlooking the city, and numerous other tracts were shown to be almost inaccessible without this road. The court finally ordered that the commissioners appointed in January should make a further xamination of the route in order to change the line somewhat. On the probate side of the court the will of Mary A. Adams was admitted to probate. The
